Lego City Undercover Lego City Undercover is a comedic sandbox-style action-adventure video game developed by TT Fusion, a division of TT Games, for the Wii U. The game was released on 18 March 2013 in North America, Europe and Australia on 28 March 2013 and in Japan on 25 July 2013. A prequel was also developed for the Nintendo 3DS. Unlike previous Lego titles developed by TT Games, which have been based on various licenses, the game is based on the Lego City brand and is the first Lego game to be published by Nintendo. Taking place in the vast Lego City, players control an undercover cop named Chase McCain.

Lovely, varied fun The open structure changes abruptly when you choose to follow the story into one of the many missions. Then the game suddenly turns over to the way we know the old "Lego" games. The camera gets more fixed and you get a touch of platform games all over the place. A nice mix, that is. Works well as an adventurer to the game as well, and it will never be boring even though these static angles make jump sequences unnecessarily difficult sometimes. These story sequences are really well made and are at least as good as the other games in the series. I may miss a little more challenge in how they are connected, but the variation is nothing to say about where you suddenly jump between skyscrapers and in the next swim in sewers.

Wild cops With the now trademark Lego humour, Lego City Undercover plays out as a kind of cop movie spoof. Chase McCain is the standard fish out of water cop who must take on a range of disguise in order to bring down a criminal ring from the inside. Each of these disguise offers a new skill or ability, earning access to new areas or unlockables. The open world and various vehicles give more than a hint of Grand Theft Auto but with a distinctively more child friendly tone.
